

Can helmets be stored in supermarket lockers

Overview

No, there's no law that outright bans wearing a motorcycle helmet inside a store. If a store enforces this rule, you'll either have to comply or shop elsewhere. However, stores have the right to set their own policies, and many ask riders to remove. The helmet section is basically just a bunch of straps and an extra layer of outer fabric that connects at the bottom. You set your backpack down flat, put the helmet on top of it, and there's like a net with clips that comes out the bottom of the backpack that you can put over the helmet and clip. Proper storage of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) helps prevent it from getting damaged. By ensuring PPE is stored securely, you can maintain its condition and effectiveness, reducing the need for frequent replacements.
